PENDLETON CENTENNIAL.

The Farmers' Society is 100 Years Old in 1915.

To the Members of the Pendleton Farmers' Society:

The committee appointed to arrange the program for the centennial celebration next year, desires to make a report to the society at the August meeting on Thursday, August 13, 1914. We are prepared to submit a full program to the society at that time, but in order to make this centennial celebration a success, we must have the support of every member. We therefore urge you to be present at the meeting on Thursday, August 13th, to receive and discuss our report.

We make special request not only for your own attendance, but also ask that you bring as many of the men in your community as possible, and get them to join the society and assist in this celebration.

Yours very truly,

J. H. L. LEBING,

H. M. MCNARY,

W. H. MILLS, Secy.

Anderson County Folks Chased By Warship as They Were Crossing High Seas

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Aid have arrived in Anderson county and have gone to Cashier's Valley, where they will spend a month, coming to Anderson about September 1 for a stay of several weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Aid came to America from Italy and relate some thrilling experiences about their trip over the seas to America. They sailed from Cherbourg, France, on July 25 and a few days after they cleared the port a German cruiser sighted them and gave chase. It so happened that the steamer bringing Mr. and Mrs. Aid home was a little faster than the pursuing ship and they managed to escape.

Mr. Aid is a sister of Harry A. Orr of Anderson and has been making her home in Italy since her marriage to Mr. Aid about four years ago. Her husband is a well known artist and each summer they spend a few weeks in this section of the country.

ANDERSON FOLKS HAD MANY DIFFICULTIES

COULD NOT GET AWAY FROM GERMANY

ACCOUNT OF WAR

Young Ladies From This City

Could Not Secure Accommodations and Slept in Streets

Living in peaceful Anderson, it is rather hard for local people to gain any clear conception of conditions now existing in the foreign countries but a letter just received in Anderson from Misses Floride and Gene Harris, touring the old country, gives a vivid account of the things they have undergone. One of the most striking features of the story coming to Anderson is the fact that Miss Nell Barton and Miss Bessie Major, who are also in Europe, were forced to spend one entire night on the streets of Berlin. The young ladies were stopping at a well known hotel there, but when the war broke out they gave up their rooms and went to the station, expecting to get transportation home. They returned to their hotel, only to find that it had been filled up and all other hotels in the city were full to overflowing. Both the young ladies had to spend the night on the streets and when last heard from were still in Berlin.

The following letter from Miss Floride Harris will be very interesting to every one living in Anderson county:

Sorrento, Italy.

Dear Home Folks: We have had the time of our lives recently. This has been a lovely trip down here—is one of the prettiest a person can take. We went from Milan to Venice. Our first view of Venice was in the rain, and disappointing. We took gondolas up to our hotel and it certainly was a novel experience. These tiny little canals winding in and out among these ancient old buildings. It took us about 45 minutes to get to our hotel. One, to love Venice, has to certainly see it by night for in the day time it is horrid! These canals are far from clean and you can see anything floating around on the water from dead cats on up. All the Italian cities we have seen need a good deal of health and a general clean-up day. As it was raining, we took a walk up to St. Mark's square. We took the man of our party along as it is not safe even in day time for us to go but alone. There are no horses here and few streets. The latter are very little over four feet wide, and not marked and I got lost several times. We saw St. Mark's church, art galleries and Doyer's palace, the prison underneath it, and have the "Bridge of Sighs," the Bell Tower and lace factories and other wonderful things to us. The shops were the most fascinating that we have yet seen. The heads here were very beautiful and we all made some purchases for loved ones at home. We took an ice at the famous Florian restaurant.

The square of St. Mark's deserves all that we have read of it. When we stood in the plaza in front of the church, and fed the hundreds and thousands of pigeons that flocked all around us it was an interesting sight. We took kodak pictures of each other with pigeons resting on our heads, shoulders and arms. The rain ceased and we finally went down to the August meeting on Thursday, August 13, 1914. We are prepared to submit a full program to the society at that time, but in order to make this centennial celebration a success, we must have the support of every member. We therefore urge you to be present at the meeting on Thursday, August 13th, to receive and discuss our report.

We went next to Florence. Stopped at a hotel made of an old castle that was once occupied by Bonaparte's sister. It was a lovely place. We also visited the kings palace, even went in to see it. It was the most gorgeous place I have ever seen. The name of this home was Pitti Palace. Had our pictures taken on top of it. Next we went in Pitti art gallery adjoining the kings palace. Of course we saw pictures by Raphael and all the famous Italian artists. We have seen Raphael's Michael Angelo, Rubens and others works so much now that we feel well acquainted with the "old gentlemen." We also visited the Uffizi art gallery and went in to see many cathedrals, churches, etc. (there I cannot spare time to write you of them). Went through the Protestant cemetery there and saw Mrs. Brown's grave. Took a long ride over Florence, went beyond the limits and reached Fiesole from a high hill and watched the sea. It was simply beautiful. These Italian sunsets are marvelous.

From Florence we went to Rome. The "city of memories." A year here would not be long enough to see all of interest. Our "Hotel Nuchel" is a grand one. Servants all speak English, which is a pleasure to us. An orange grove adjoins the hotel and some other are out there now on step ladders pulling all the oranges they want from the trees and enjoying them from that way, and also to quench their thirst as we dare not take a drink of water in this place and apollonarius water nor wine does not quench thirst and we long for a good drink of South Carolina water. We are besieged by pearl and cameo and post card dealers and have to storm at them to make them let us alone. We visited St. Peter's, which is the largest church in the world. The corridors were as large as the dome, tombs and statues in it were immense. It was the figure of St. Peter, the toes of which had been kissed off by adoring people. Two of us did the kissing act. Another place we visited was the House of the Sacred Stairs. They were the stairs Christ came down on from the house of Pilate and were moved here from Jerusalem. No one is allowed to walk on their feet on these holy stairs, but have to go up and down on their knees and usually say a prayer on each step. While we were looking we saw many going up, down on their knees lost in prayer. Jean wanted to go up and down one afternoon we went to the Catacombs. That was the scariest, creepiest, experience we have yet had. We each took a lighted candle, led by a monk with a candle in his hand, and went single file through long narrow paths branching off in all directions, forming a perfect maze of corridors. Different stories or galleries lie one below the other; small quantities of light and air come in the vertical shafts. Miles of graves lie longwise in galleries. They are enclosed by a slab with a symbol or inscription on them such as a dove or a fish anchor or a palm branch. The earliest date on any is the year 111 A. D. It is certain early Christians in times of persecution came down underneath the ground and took refuge in these catacombs in order to celebrate in secret their religious ceremonies, and also served as ordinary burying places for early Christians, one burial ground being connected with another until they extend for long distances. If our candles had gone out we never could have found our way out, or if our guide had left us it would have been almost impossible to have found our way out. The glare of light in Rome we had to wear smoked glasses. The roads are perfectly white, and one day after a drive on the Appian Way, when we got to the hotel we looked like tramps—even our hair was gray with dust. We have to pay 50 cents for every all over bath we take. One thing we enjoy is our shoes shined free. We put them outside the door and the next morning they are there nice and bright for us. Joke on Jean. One morning they gave her a pair of mans shoes instead of hers. One Catholic girl is in our party and she got an audience with the Pope. Had permission to bring four others with her and Jean, as usual, was a lucky one. Had a time at the hotel getting them diked up for the occasion, as they had to borrow black dresses and long black veils. You should have seen them when they started out. They only had the Pope in the room with them a short while and he blessed them all and then went on into a private room with the Catholic girl. Jean will write you all about it in her letter. We visited the Vatican, the art galleries adjoining it. The Sistine chapel was lovely and the work done there by Raphael was wonderful. We drove out to the Forum with Mr. Pratt, the head of our party—he has been here on trips 17 times and gave us a lecture on the Forum. He took us up on one of the seven hills that Rome is built on and then to a tea room where we got cake and cream. That night an Italian band played for several hours in front of our hotel, and we sat out on the balcony in front of our hotel and enjoyed it. Another interesting place was the Capuduan church with a holy burying ground underneath the church of soil that came from the Holy land. The monks bodies stay in this soil for a certain number of years and then their bones are taken up and a museum is made of them. They decorate the walls in all kinds of designs, and make of their skulls and bones chandeliers, racks, tables, etc. It was horrible to us, but some doctors who were with us thought it was lovely. We saw the Coliseum, St. Paul without the wall, Victor Emanuel's monument, Pantheon, Trivia fountain (where if you wish to return to Rome you drop in a coin at midnight—and we sure threw in a coin). I left my purse on the seat of a carriage and was miserable enough for half a day, as it had $50 of Annie Pooles in it and $50 of my own besides checks, cards, mileage for my railroad fare home and the "State" fountain pen, bracelet, pins and some purchases. When I returned to the hotel I found the carriage driver waiting for me, hat in one hand and purse in the other and nothing gone. I gave him a big tip and was too happy the rest of the day.

Got up at 6 this morning and drove for five hours to this place Sorrento is beautiful. Had a grand luncheon at this hotel right on the water and the view is beyond description. On our drive we counted ten different kinds of fruit besides flowers, many cacti and strange plants. We got out and picked lemons, oranges, olives and the biggest figs we ever saw and very large plums. We eat all the time and still are hungry. The drive to Amalfi was grand and we went wild over the scenery, the mountains on one side and the blue, blue water on the other. At the table there last night they gave us a copy of Longfellow poem called "Amalfi," as a souvenir. Our drive there was of course along the Mediterranean sea for 14 miles. We drove 25 miles to get to Sorrento which is the very prettiest place of all. We will go in bathing here this afternoon and leave by boat for Naples tonight.

Goodbye till next letter.

PEACE TREATIES ARE RATIFIED

Their Purpose is to Prevent Sudden Wars as Now Exist in Europe

(By Associated Press) Washington, Aug. 13.—Eighteen of the twenty peace treaties with formations of inquiry before resort to arms in international disputes which ordinary resources of diplomacy fail to settle, were ratified today by the senate.

Treaties ratified are with Norway, the Netherlands, Portugal, Switzerland, Denmark, Italy, Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua, Bolivia, Persia, Costa Rica, Venezuela, Uruguay, Argentina, Brazil and Chile.

Postponement of action on pacts with the Dominican republic and Panama was determined upon after spirited debate over present relations between the United States and those republics. The United States attempted to settle a revolution in San Domingo and it was suggested that the pending agreement might conflict with existing treaties.

Senator Fall led opposition to ratification of the Panama treaty in its present form. Under the canal act ships of that republic may pass through the canal free of tolls. Senator Fall urged that any new convention should prevent the possibility of complications arising through an alliance with foreign interests by citizens of Panama to purchase ships. In its report the foreign relations committee, referring to the war in Europe, said:

"The main purpose of these treaties is to give time for nations engaged in international controversies to reflect and to afford opportunity for passion to subside before hostilities shall begin, before the passions of war shall have inflamed a nation an opportunity is given for the influences of peace and reason to prevail. It is believed that the existence of such treaties as these will be most potential in preventing the precipitation of sudden wars such as now exist in Europe."

Treaties with Salvador, Guatemala, Panama, Honduras, Nicaragua and Persia contained a provision which the senate eliminated, providing that the contracting parties agree not to increase their naval or military programs unless danger from a third power should compel such increase, pending report of the international commission.
